BERKELEY BOYS WIN AT CHESS.

They Take Four Out Of Six Games With Stanford.

The Baseball Nine Is Given a Goose Egg by the Alumni.

Saturday's intercollegiate chess tournament at Mark Hopkins' Institute of Art resulted in complete victory for California's players. California won four games, lost one and tied another.

Each team chose its players in order of their ability, and these were matched at the tables. The players were arranged as follows:

At table No. 1—Parkhurst vs. Serpas. No. 2—Epstein vs. Veuve. No. 3—Towle vs. Van Kauthoven. No. 4—Hofeld vs. Whitaker. No. 5—Euphrat vs. Arnold. No. 6—Baugh vs. Knecht.

Van Kauthoven won from Towle on a penalized move. Serpas drew with Parkhurst. In the other four games California's men easily won.

California's gray-suited baseballmen met severe defeat at the hands of the Alumni team Saturday by a score of 7 to 0. Splendid fielding, no errors, and Krug's pitching won the game for the older players.

The Alumni team was greatly strengthened by the additions of Krug in the box, Wheeler at second, and Ireland in center. The pitching of Krug was without flaw. The collegians did not seem able to find his twirling spheres, only four hits being made off his delivery. Allen, at first, played an errorless game. He batted well also, making one home run when three men were on bases.

Coach Cochran's good work was discernable in the college nine. Few errors were made, and except for the inability to find Krug, an excellent game was played. Kaarsberg's pitching, while still far from Varsity form, was good, seven hits being ade off him. McCabe, at short played a poor game, missing two out of four chances. The nines lined up as follows:

California		Alumni
Kaarsburg	pitcher	Krug
Mein	catcher	Elston
Collins / Bride	1st base	Allen
McLaren	2d base	Wheeler
Baer	3d base	McKee
Foster, McCabe	s. s.	Lewis
Hong (Capt.)	c. f.	Ireland

DR. MINTON ON EVIDENCE OF CHRISTIANITY.

A Christian Life the Strongest Proof That is Possible.

Faith Should be Proved and Christians Should Learn to Think.

Dr. H. C. Minton preached last evening at the First Presbyterian church on "The Strongest Evidence of Christianity," from the text in I Peter 2-15. "For so is the will of God that with well doing ye may [illegible] foolish men." He said in part: "It is very common to say that the age in which we live is pre-eminently an age of doubt. It is not much of a man nowadays that takes anything for granted. But we make a great mistake if we imagine that this is characteristic exclusively of modern times.

"It is, of course necessary that truth should be defended. When Christianity is called false there should be those who are able to prove it true. When there are those who tell us that miracles are either misunderstood or impossible, there should certainly be those who will speak for the great doctrine of miraculous intervention. It is right to prove our faith.

"A man may be a very devout Christian who has never had occasion to think of the foundation of his faith, but it is well for intelligent people to have a reason for the hope that is in them. We should be ready to defend our faith. Every Christian should be within his own sphere and within his own limits a professor of apologetics.

"The text gives us a proof which Peter regarded as very convincing. Peter's argument is simply the concrete evidence of a good life.

"Everybody cannot appreciate metaphysical and philosophical apologetics. Everybody can appreciate a good man, however ignorant or humble he may be. A good man is bound to be a standing proof of the principles of Christianity."

A Boxing Contest.

Hugine O'Brien and Harry Baker today signed articles for an eight-round boxing contest which will take place before the Beacon Athletic Club on Saturday evening the 19.

A Fire Meeting.

The Beacon Fire Company will hold a meeting this evening to consider the tower proposition.

Firemen at Church

A large number of the West Berkeley firemen attended services at the West Berkeley Presbyterian church last evening. Rev. Robinson preached on the duties of Sabbath Observance. In the morning the text was taken from Psalm 118, 25th verse: "O Lord, I beseech Thee to send now prosperity."

MEETING OF ATHLETIC COMMITTEE.

Football Manager Brown Presents His Report for the Season.

It is Finally Decided to Reject the Proposed New Constitution.

The Athletic Constitution which was submitted by a committee consisting of Prof. Thos. R. Bacon, Charles P. Nott and McWade 97, last fall, has been declared unsuited to the needs of California. A subcommittee, consisting of Hopper 98 and Bodwell, 98 was appointed to carefully consider the proposed constitution, and upon its recommendation the Executive Committee of A. A. U. C., at its special meeting Friday night, decided not to adopt the constitution. The committee, however, recognized the needs of radical change in our present athletic law, and appointed Col. George C. Edwards and Hopper 98 a committee to propose amendments to the constitution now in force.

On recommendation of the auditing committee, Manager Brown's football report was received and placed on file. It shows a net profit of $1825.00. The itemized report is as follows:

LORIN PIONEER PASSES AWAY.

Death Came to A. B. Dixon Last Saturday.

A. B. Dixon a well known citizen of Lorin, died Saturday evening at his residence on Harmon street. He was an old resident of the South end, having settled there in 1866 and he had a large number of friends in all parts of town.

Deceased was born in New York state and lived a number of years in Ohio and Pennsylvania before coming west. He settled in Gilroy on his first arrival in California and engaged in the dairy business in which he was very successful. At the time of his death he possessed a good deal of property, largely real estate.

Mr. Dixon had been a member of the Park Congregational church, having been a trustee, deacon and treasurer and at a still earlier period he was treasurer of the First Congregational church. He was very active in church affairs and during the entire fifteen years of the existence of the Park church, is said to have never missed a communion service till the illness that closed his career confined him to his home.

Mr. Dixon leaves a widow and four sons and daughters, Mrs. W Derrickson, Frank W. Dixon, Arthur Dixon and Guy Dixon, all residents of Lorin.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the Park Congregational church. The Rev. S. G. Arnett and C. E. Lyman Hood both officiating. The pall bearers are old and well known Lorinites. They are Thomas Stevenson, Gad Alwyn, J. S. Crew, E. D. Harmon, J. B. Woolsey and A. D. Colby.

The remains will be interred at Mountain View.

Struck by a Ball.

John Donovan, manager of the Spear baseball team, while witnessing a game yesterday was struck by a ball which inflicted a gash an inch and a half long on the left side of his jaw. The wound was dressed by Dr. Gladding.

Hard Luck.

The Spears run up against a streak of hard luck yesterday. In the morning they were defeated by the Colts by a score of eight to five; in the afternoon they lowered their colors to the Golden Gates, the score being ten to seven.

A STIRRING APPEAL TO THE ELEVEN.

The Boys Are Called on to Redeem Last Year's Defeat.

Incidentally the College Athletic Spirit Comes in for Criticism.

Editor Creed in this morning CALIFORNIAN says;

Today begins the work which will decide whether or not the smarting memory of a twenty-eight to nothing football disaster shall be saved by a victory over [illegible] on Thanksgiving day. Coach Cochran has summoned the men who have the loyalty to rally to the support of their university to gather in the gymnasium at 4:10 o'clock this afternoon that they may be enrolled for spring practice. Every student who weighs 150 pounds or more, every student who can help, though ever so little, in developing an eleven worthy to represent California, should feel it a duty, which it would be shame and ingratitude to shirk, to volunteer today and promise to do his loyal utmost for his university.

The task before us is a heavy one. From the wreck of last year's hopes new effort, resolute and untiring, must labor to build up an eleven of which we need not be ashamed California has secured a coach who is thoroughly capable and who can and will do all that is possible for a coach to do. But his efforts will be useless unless he has the sincere, unflinching and united support of the students.

Too often our athletic work is dilly-dallying. Changes are imperatively demanded in an athletic constitution, and after six months of talk everything suggested is thrown by the board, and the document remains just as it did before; a track manager goes off to Alaska, and a year after his duties are ended no financial report can be extracted from him, the athletes cherish a fond idea that they need not begin training until a contest draws near. Let none of this spirit of delay prevail in football this year. Let no man put off turning out until fall comes, but let every student who can help, however little, begin his work today, with faithful and immutable resolve to persevere.

A Serious Charge.

Mrs. Neil Kelley of South Berkeley claims that her husband is trying to have her sent to an insane asylum in order to get their homestead at Derby and Dana streets away from her. She accuses her husband of extreme cruelty. Kelly is under bonds to answer a charge of wife beating in the Justices' Court of Oakland on March 17.

Those attending from Berkeley will be Paolo Salisbury, Deputy National Councillor, J. C. Sherratt and Geo. Mooning, Past Councillors as representatives from Paul Revere.

The entertainment provided for the regular monthly "Good of the [illegible] was greatly enjoyed by the large membership in attendance on Saturday last, more than a dozen members taking part in the rendition of the program. The oration of Major J. R. Ayer on "Two Portraits—Washington and Napoleon," was indeed a most pleasing and well chosen one and met, at its close, with a merited and stormy applause.

HE ROBBED THE DEAKIN RESIDENCE.

Joe King, an Ex-Convict Again in Trouble.

King, who is an ex-convict, made a full confession. He had one accomplice, who is known to the detectives, and his arrest is hourly expected.

A Charming and Select Society Affair in Lorin.

Miss Christine Staats entertained a number of her friends at a "Japanese luncheon" at her residence, 1525 Alcatraz Avenue, Friday afternoon, March 4th.

The dining room was tastefully and exquisitely decorated with Japanese bric-a-brac, light being furnished by numerous lanterns suspended from festoons that spanned the room.

The souvenirs were dainty fans on the backs of which appeared the menu. The guests were entertained with musical numbers by Mrs. G. T. Wheeler, Miss Alice Chappelear, Miss Winifred Pierce and Miss Josiphene Crew.

Those present were Mrs. G. T. Wheeler, Misses Alice Chappelear, Mabel Rice, Margeret and Anna Ronaldson, Stella Aylwin, Winifred Pierce, Etta Donovan, Louise and Josephine Crew, Mamie and Christine Staats, Mrs. A. P. Wright.

A Peculiar Accident.

The seven-year old son of J. Brown was the victim of a peculiar accident Saturday evening. THE HIGH SCHOOL SITE.

EDITOR GAZETTE: If current rumors are to be believed it is the intention of some members of the Board of Education of the town of Berkeley to erect the new High School on the site of the present Kellogg School. As this our new High School building, will be the next and greatest step toward citifying our village, it is well worth while to consider wisely how we should proceed in this affair.

A private citizen thinks well before erecting a noble building in a neighborhood unsuited to residences, or on a lot unworthy of a heavy investment. How much more should a city consider the wisdom of its selection! It is rumored that the old Kellogg School shall stand on the back of the lot, and the High School occupy the front. That means, in cold English, that the rattle-trap of an old building, with all its appendages of sheds and shanties, will disgrace the site and interfere with the proper development of lines and forms of the new house.

Even if such were not the case, is the site spoken of the proper one? Is it right to select a site for a school in a part of a town destined to be mostly business and church quarters? And then again, is the space half large enough to properly set off a building and permit of decent-sized grounds? Will it be style in Berkeley? "Beautiful Berkeley?" to crowd our municipal buildings when land is to be had by blocks, by acres?

The value of land should cut no figure whatever. Let us presume that a block was set aside. Would not the value of the purchase be justly added to the assessment of the surrounding blocks at the next tax levy? Would not a new center of attraction, a nucleus for development of a new part of town be created? Is it not entirely immaterial where our High School is? With free rides on our local train, Dwight way or Ashby or Berryman are just as much entitled to the new school building. Or are not the broad acres back of Mr. Shattuck's home room enough to admit any kind of expand to our best of wishes for the building? Or is it entirely forgotten that we have about the only actual avenue in existence on this side of the bay, University avenue? Is that noble thoroughfare doomed to shanties and poor people's homes for the next twenty-five years to come?

If our Board of Education is a body of wise men, men with the true interest of their town at heart and with a broad interest of things not as they are today but as they will be five or ten years hence, they should have the courage to select a decent site and stand by it. If they fall by it, it is more honorable to have upheld a high principle than to knuckle down to ideas of people which are too silurian to be worthy of our regards. GEO. HANSEN.

EDUCATION AND PATRIOTISM.

Grand Master Workman William Vinter, during the course of an address, cites the South Berkeley Workmen's entertainment last Friday evening, seized the occasion to manifest his approval of the remarks of Professor Boone concerning the school bond question. The distinguished visitor laid particular emphasis on the relationship with which exists between patriotism and education. In view of our present strained relations with Spain Mr. Vinter's remarks were extremely pertinent, and met with the earnest approval of the large assemblage present. It is a truism that the more education a people possess the more patriotic they are. The reason for this is obvious. A race reared in ignorance knows and cares nothing of its history, its institutions, and its country. Consequently its patriotism is cant or the least which will fight for its cave through instinct. Such a race can never give birth to a Leonidas, a Cromwell, or a Washington. The public school system of the United States is one of the great institutions of the age. It is largely owing to this system that our country occupies the position it does to-day.

Before the present month has become a part of the past, the residents of Berkeley will have an opportunity to do something toward the advancement of education. Will they do it? We think they will.

Alleged Humor.

"Pears like the eclipses arn't going be as interistin' this year as usual," remarked the rural legislator who was looking at an almanac.

"Well," responded his colleague "what do you think? Had we better get together and pass some laws about it?"

The Applied Arts.

All sorts of breezes, more or less fitful, ruffle the surface of art, but the current is once more setting with increasing steadiness and strength toward the point where art becomes the handmaid that ministers to the practical needs of men. Painters and sculptors are working with the architects not only in beautifying buildings, but in giving an artistic perfection to the furnishings and utensils. Stained glass, mosaic, wall papers and fabrics, furniture, posters, book and magazine illustrations are only some of the numerous avenues of activity which the movement opens up to the artist. It is quite within recent years that it has reached our shores, but now that it is come its continuance and its spread are assured, for it appeals exactly to the democratic conditions of the national life. It brings the masses in touch with art and in the way most likely to influence them—by daily contact.

Museums do much to refine and cultivate the thousands who visit them, but their usefulness would be small compared with a diffusion of art among all the things of everyday life. That is the goal to which the movement in favor of the "applied arts" is directed, and undeniably none could be nobler. No doubt it is a long way off, but that is no reason for despairing of the possibility of reaching it. Nor is the material character of American life a bar to it. The Athenians of Pericles' time, the Italians of the renaissance and the Netherlanders were material enough and fully as bent on matters merely mercenary, and yet they surrounded themselves with the evidences, in small things as well as big, of taste and refinement.

There is no incompatibility between materialism and art, especially when at the back of both is a strong pride in citizenship. A large share of the credit for what has already been accomplished is due to the architects. On them devolves the execution of the biggest evidences of improved taste, and they have [illegible] own work that of the painters and sculptors.—Harper's Weekly.

Butterfly Neckties.

"I had a singular experience during a recent tour of Europe," remarked a gentleman prominent in the literary world, "in the search for one of the simple, ordinary butterfly neckties. There was a time when I wore scarfs and ties more elaborate, but that has passed, and I, like many other men who have passed the meridian of life, am content with comfort instead of looks. I had a pretty good supply of butterfly ties with me, but somehow I mislaid them while in Rome. I searched through nearly every store in the Eternal City, but could not find any. I had a similar experience in Berlin and Vienna. I was told, however, that I would have no trouble to secure what I wanted in Paris, but, though I tried nearly all the large establishments, I could not find such a thing, though there were hundreds of other styles easily obtainable. Next I tried London, though more for the fun of the thing than anything else, for I had some made to order in Paris, and, strange as it may appear, none of the haberdashers of London could supply them. Until this experience I did not know that the butterfly tie is distinctly an American idea and is only known here."—Washington Star.

The Sultan.

The president of the United States is no more informal than the sultan in his manner of receiving guests. He places his visitor beside him on the sofa and himself lights the cigarette he offers him. He is himself an inveterate smoker; the cigarette is never out of his fingers. As the sultan is supposed to speak no languages but Turkish and Arabic his majesty, though a good French scholar, carries on conversation through a dragoman.

Quite recently a very great lady had the honor of dining with his majesty—the first Turkish sovereign, by the way, who has ever admitted a Christian woman to his table. After dinner the lady noticed a mousetrap, which had been forgotten, on one of the chairs

"Oh," said the sultan, "that is an excellent trap! It was sent to me from England, and I have caught ten mice in it today."—Youth's Companion.

A Dangerous Precedent.

A paragraph in a Nebraska paper is to the effect that a well known man in that state has been "convicted of personating a lawyer." If a man can be sent to jail on such a charge, many members of the Rochester bar are not safe.—Rochester Post-Express.

Germany's highest bridge is over the Wupperthal at Mungsten, near Remscheid, back of Elberfeld. It is 360 feet high and 1,630 feet long, the central arch having a span of 530 feet. The only higher bridge in Europe is the Garabit viaduct, 405 feet high, in southern France.

Intellect Against Intellect.

"If you want to see intellect play against intellect," said a young lawyer, yet in his enthusiasm, believing in equity and the purity of the law, "you should go down to the civil or the supreme court when a big case is being heard. It is not like sitting through a criminal trial. A man's quickness and eloquence are often assisted there by dramatic details, but in the civil or supreme courts a lawyer must depend upon his own brain alone and not upon emotional tricks. What a delight it is for me to listen to the wit, combats and terse arguments of two masters grown gray at the bar! These men have at their command the reading of twoscore years. They are armed with the humor of experience and the cool sight of age. Their intellects, never having been wasted in idleness, are as fresh as a young girl's dream of life and as unerring as a woodman's rifle. When they take up an argument on an important affair, it is not to make a few palsied remarks. They go deep, plunging into the very core of things. If need be they begin to elucidate law from its inception in the remotest confines of ancient civilizations; and they drift easily and gracefully along the centuries, giving a regular compendium of history as they go along To see these old fellows ordinarily you would imagine that they were sleepy and slow, but when they appear before the bar their frames become erect, their eyes flash and they thunder and roar as if with voices of lions."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Wouldn't Be "Half Hanged."

It was once the custom in several southern states, when a man under sentence of the law was hanged and three times in succession broke the rope and fell to the earth before the sentence could be carried out, to liberate him and thereafter to account him innocent of the crime of which he was convicted.

An old darky past the threescore and ten years generally allotted to man had a neighbor whom he considered a "hoodoo," a "Jonah." One day he went over to his neighbor's house and killed him with a shotgun. He was tried, convicted and sentenced to death. The day of the execution arrived, and a great crowd assembled to see the old man hanged. He was a very heavy man, and when the noose had been placed around his neck and the barrel drawn from under him his weight broke the rope and he fell to the ground.

The second time and the third time the rope broke, and then his friends demanded that he be released. The sheriff turned him over to his friends, who made a great show of welcome. But he broke away from them, and, hurrying to the sheriff, who was about to leave the scene, he astounded him with: "Hold on, Massa Sheriff! Hold on! Put that rope around this old nigger's neck again. D'yo think I'm goin to have all de folks pointin me out as a half hung man? No, sah. Try it again! Try it again!"

The sheriff did try it again, and this time the rope did not break.—New York Sun.

Could Stand It No Longer.

Mrs. Firmly was working savagely away with the hash knife when her next door neighbor called.

"What in the world is that?" asked the visitor.

"That," with more vicious jabbing than before, "is what is left of Firmly's camera. I'm destroying the last vestige of it. I have pulverized the lenses, burned the frames and am now chopping the rest of the infernal machine into shreds. I'll show him. That [illegible] a young fortune. He has bought every attachment and improvement that has been placed on the market. They filled a saratoga trunk and there were plates enough to roof a greenhouse.

"I might have become reconciled, but he never took a picture that you could recognize, and yet he was always at it. Three of the children went down with the croup because he would have us on the front porch to be photographed. The negatives looked as though some one had swiped the glass with a whitewash brush loaded with lampblack. He had us out in blizzards, rainstorms and the hottest weather just to experiment. Every shot was a dismal failure, but he always had excuses and was just going to produce something that would be a work of art. He'd invite friends by the score to have their pictures taken, and two-thirds of them are mad because nothing ever came of it. I've argued and pleaded and wept, but he has kept buying and making failures."

"But won't he be very angry?"

"He can't get half as mad as I am," with an awful stab. "If he can ever find hide or hair of this camera when I'm through with it, he's welcome. If he buys another, I'll get a divorce."—Detroit Free Press.

Pay of Old Time Architects.

As near as we can discover the architect of "ye olden tyme" did not receive for his services a very exorbitant sum. Recently some members of the French school at Delphi unearthed several slabs of marble which bear inscriptions of great interest, dating as they do from the fourth century before Christ. The inscriptions, which cover about 200 lines, give the price of work for building operations in Greece at the period named, and from them we learn that an architect was paid at the rate of $150 per annum or less. This was little enough surely, even if its purchasing power is multiplied, as it should be, five or six times. Sir Christopher Wren received for his services the magnificent sum of £200 per year for more than 20 years while rebuilding London. His [illegible] received about $300 per [illegible] French and Cer[illegible] were not even so well paid at the same period. Bad as this was it was better than the remuneration [illegible] architects received [illegible] if an artist made a noble design and erected a building worthy of admiration his chances of being suddenly removed by order of the king were many. This step was taken in order to prevent a rival king from obtaining the services of an architect who might be able to so improve his plans that a finer and nobler building would be executed.—Architecture and Building.

Eyelids In a Strange Role.

The dancing girls of Bangkok are always exercising in the royal gymnasium. Their ages vary from 5 to 20 years. The curious and subtle feat of picking up a bit of straw with the eyelids can be learned only by the youngest of them, who are made to practice it in order to render them flexible in every part of the body. There are two long rows of benches, one a little higher than the other. On the lower is a row of little girls, and on the upper bench are laid the polished bits of straw. At the sound of the drum the little girls all together bend back the head and neck until they touch the bits of straw, which with wonderful dexterity they secure between the corners of their eyelids.—London Modern Society.

Indian Antipathy to Fish.

At a meeting in Baltimore of the American Folklore society Dr. Washington Matthews of Washington read a paper on "Icthyophobia," which he described as an antipathy to fish. This aversion is especially strong in the Navajo, Apache and other Indian tribes of the far southwest, who will not eat fish or have anything to do with articles made in the shape of fish. This "taboo" with the Navajos extends to all things connected with water. A probable reason why no more children of these tribes are sent east to be educated, Dr. Matthews thought, was a fear that they might be required to overcome this cherished "taboo" superstition, which is as firmly rooted as any religion.

A legend to account for this fish "taboo" was given. There was a time when food was scarce, and the mountain Indians had a big powwow with the river Indians. The result was that the river Indians agreed to kill no deer, but live entirely on fish, and the mountain Indians agreed to eat no fish, but live entirely upon deer. This made food plenty for both.

In the discussion of the paper it was stated that the Zuni Indians will not eat fish because savage tribes in desert lands regard water as sacred because of its scarcity, and this reverence extends to animal life in water. Several members thought perhaps this idea conveyed the true reason for the fish "taboo."—Baltimore Sun.

Hopeless.

Sir Charles—Not understand the difference between convex and concave? I will try to explain. Convex is like the outside curve of an umbrella opened. The inside view would be concave.

Aline—I see. But how would that be with a parasol?—London Punch.

A Modern Youth.

"Ha, ha, my proud beauty," said he, "you love another!"

"I do," said the blushing maiden.

He pondered. "Well," said he finally, his features lighting with fiendish joy, "you ain't in it if you do. Within 24 hours I shall have procured an injunction against your marrying him."—Indianapolis Journal.

Times Have Changed.

"No such times as there used to be," sighed the gray haired but vigorous traveling man who was enjoying himself with the usual Saturday night crowd.

"There was a time when they were booming those western towns that I saved about all my expense money, and that was a mighty big item in flush times."

"Give us your recipe, old man."

"It's of no use now. They're bumping along on rock bottom out in that country. But then money was no object. When approaching a boom town, I'd discover some resident of the place aboard the train and casually let drop to him that I was looking for a good real estate investment. That was all, and it was worth from $50 to $100 a drop. I'd start innocently for a hack. Knowing as well as I lived I'd never reach it. Some speculator would seize me by the arm, introduce himself, put me in his private carriage, whirl me to the best hotel, get me the best room, make a date to drive me over the place and solemnly inform me that the town was mine.

"Live high! Higher than a wild goose. They would take no money at the bar, the hotel clerk never had a bill against me and I couldn't spend a cent. It was one constant round, as the 'boys' say. You know my line then. I sold to one man in a place and only called on him once a year. He always stood in, kept mum and shared in the good things. I made a pile of money, for expense bills ran high those days, but I guess it is just as well for me that the bottom dropped out. A man's stomach won't stand everything."—Detroit Free Press.

A writer in The Medical Review maintains that coffee is responsible for the large number of blind men one sees in the streets of Moroccan cities. The Moorish merchants drink coffee all day long, and it has been noticed that many of them lose their eyesight between 45 and 50.
